Last year business declined in the autumn and at Thanksgiving was in a decided slump, pulling records below 1926 and giving a somewhat gloomy outlook for 1928

Circulation of money is now increasing rapidly, but will not reach a maximum until the last shopping day before Christmas Millions will be poured into the money market by payment of Christmas savings accounts which are said to be the largest on record

Why Turkey for Thanksgiving?

WHEN the Pilgrim Fathers had their first crop harvested, Governor Bradford directed the settlers to go gunning for wild turkey. These native birds, with products of the Pilgrims' fields, were made the means of a bountiful thanksgiving festival, at which the Indians were royally entertained.

In this way the turkey became the national Thanksgiving bird—a symbol of completed harvest, of goodwill, of grateful appreciation for blessings received.

We hope your blessings include a growing cash reserve, deposited here where it acquires safety, the helping hand of an influential financial institution and the profit of a generous interest rate.

REP. BRITTEN WOULD HALT NAVAL RACE

Two Committees of Civilians from U. S. and Great Britain in Plan

SHOCK TO WASHINGTON

Speculation Rife as to Whether Illinois Congressman Will Be "Spanked"

Washington, Nov. 28—Having launched a revolutionary move for a "peoples' conference" to prevent the United States and Great Britain from being precipitated into a race for world naval supremacy, Rep. Fred A. Britten, Republican of Illinois, chairman of the house naval affairs committee, today awaited reaction to the proposal.

The Britten plan, suggested in a cablegram to Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin of Great Britain, calls for a meeting of members of the house naval affairs committee of the British parliament in Canada after March 4, 1929.

The two committees, composed entirely of civilians and all elected directly by the people, would take up the naval dispute between the two great powers which the tri-partite conference called at Geneva by President Coolidge failed to settle.

Shock to Capital

After canvassing the entire naval situation for a "peoples' viewpoint" the legislators would make reports to their governments.

The proposal came as a shock to diplomatic Washington. It is declared to shatter all precedents in its proposal to go over the heads of the American state department and the British foreign office and institute a "public diplomacy" policy.

The plan however, Britten said, is well founded upon his authority as a member of congress and the further fact that his committee is charged with preparing plans to maintain the American navy. The constitution, he said, puts the burden of regulating both land and naval forces squarely upon congress.

While the Harding naval disarmament conference in 1921 brought out a ratio limitation plan upon capital warships, there is no limitation upon cruiser building and aircraft development. The present $274,000,000 cruiser bill pending in congress is designed to cut down Britsh supremacy.

Crying Need, He Says

With the Coolidge Geneva conference having ended in failure and the League of Nations disarmament conference apparently on the rock, too, there is a crying need for settlement of disputes before the renewal of the Washington conference in 1931 Britten said.

The conference, Britten proposed, would hear testimony and fully discuss all questions in connection with applying the principle of equality in sea power between Great Britain and the United States, on all ships of war not already covered by the Washington treaty.

"America's naval policy has never been competitive but on the contrary has always been defensive and rarely commensurate with the world position of the United States," said Britten. "We have actually been backward in promoting true national defense. American people favor general armament reduction but only to a limit of national safety. Pacifism will never reign in our red-blooded country. If it should, we are lost.

May be "Spanked"

"England and America should lead the way now toward naval limitation and a peaceful understanding on the seas, we must never be regarded as military competitors."

Meanwhile, there was considerable speculation here today as to whether Representative Britten will be officially "spanked" for his boldly sending such a proposal to the head of a foreign government with out consultation with the state department.

There is on the statute books a law, the Logan act, designed specifically to prohibit such communications between American citizens and the heads of foreign governments. The exact scope of the Logan act is somewhat hazy, some officials interpreting it to cover only communications tending to embroil American relations with a foreign country, but others asserting it covers anything proposed in an official or semi-official way.

ROSALIE is evidently pointing out a direction to the invisible person and using her new bag for the purpose. And, undoubtedly, Rosalie has inside one of the new little vanities topped with an ivory writing pad. The writing may be removed with a damp cloth.

Guest Artists Featured in Fourth Program of Lecture-Recital Series

New York and Columbus Musicians Present Entertainment of Exceptional Quality Before Large Audience in Hotel Harding Ballroom

BY HALLIE HOUCK
Marion Star Staff Writer

Miss Miriam Saint, of New York City, who recently returned from four years of study and concert work in Europe, was one of the brilliant successes of the excellent program presented last night in the Hotel Harding ballroom as the fourth number of the Marion Lecture Recital club's season series. Miss Saint and Mrs. Marguerite Herr Oman, pianist, were assistant artists with the Norwester club, of Columbus, guests of the local club for this program.

Miss Saint sang three numbers in the third group of the program, and the outburst of applause was so generous and continuous that she pleased her audience with a light song, "The False Prophet," Scott, as an encore. The three numbers meriting this praise were "The Singer," Maxwell, in which the artist, after hearing the merry trill of a bird in a nearby tree, can see no comparison with her own efforts at song. "Bells of Youth," Speaks, and last, an aria from Puccini's "Madame Butterfly." This last was sung in Italian, in which Miss Saint has perfect command after a study in Italy with Maestro Perilli.

Large Audience

The audience, which was one of the largest yet in attendance at the recitals, was composed of a number of vocal enthusiasts, judging from the ovation given Miss Saint and Mrs. John M. Hiss, contralto, the sixth artist on the program, accompanied by Mrs. Oman at the piano. Numbers presented by Mrs. Hiss included "The Bitterness of Love," Dunn, "Indian Dawn," Zamecnik, in which Mrs. Norma Hopkins Putman accompanied at the violin, and "I Love the Moon." As her encore, Mrs. Hiss sang, "Minor and Major," Strauss.

The opening selections of the program were "Arioso," Handel, and "By the Brook," Boisdeffre, the latter proving especially popular with the audience, played by a trio, Mrs. Norma Hopkins Putman, violin, Mrs. Maybelle Ackland Stepanian, cello and Mrs. Marguerite Herr Oman, piano.

Anniversary Number

Mrs. Victor Reis gave an impressive and beautifully presented rendition of Schubert's "Impromptu," in commemoration of the one hundredth anniversary of the death of the noted composer.

"Slavonic Dance," Dvorak-Kreisler and "Ave Maria," Schubert-Wilhelmy, were perfect compositions to display the technique and delicacies of movement which Mrs. Putman has at her command as an artist on the violin.

Mrs. Oman presented three delightful solo numbers at the piano, "Dedication," Schumann Liszt, "The Submerged Cathedral," Dubussy and "Rush Hour In Hongkong," Chasin.

Before her second number, Mrs. Oman explained the legend surrounding the piece, "The Submerged Cathedral." It is a myth that centuries ago an island sank off the coast of France and that once in every hundred years the Cathedral rises above the waters, and the music of the bells, the organ and the congregation singing can be heard. These sounds, together with the slow rising and sinking of the cathedral, all are heard in the music.

Novelty Selection

"Rush Hour in Hongkong" was, as its name implies, a Chinese novelty number, and immediately won the audience.

The trio of violin, cello and piano closed this program of a delightful hour and a half, after which the audience, anxious to meet and know the artists, held an informal reception on the mezzanine.

Before the opening of the evening's entertainment, Mrs. James C. Woods, president of the local club, announced the next number of the program, to be given at Trinity Baptist church Monday night, Dec. 10, as the annual Christmas gift of the club to the city of Marion. Each member was urged to attend with a friend.

SORE THROAT

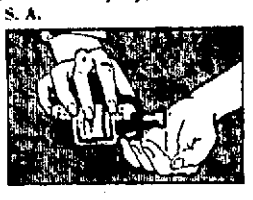

—end it!

See how little trouble with your throat you have when you use Listerine full strength as a daily gargle.

Head colds, throat irritations, are usually caused by germs. At the first sign of trouble use Listerine, full strength. It is powerful against germs—so powerful, in fact, that it kills even the virulent B. Typhosus (typhoid) germs in 15 seconds.

During winter weather use Listerine night and morning and between times after cold or wet feet, or exposure to drafts or bad air in cars, buses or trains. It is pleasant, effective, safe.

To escape COLDS

Countless colds start when germs are carried to the mouth on food. By using Listerine on the hands before every meal, you attack such germs and lessen the risk of cold. Remember this, mothers, when handling baby's food.

Comparative Tests Give School Pupils Here Higher Rating Than 5 Years Ago

That Marion public school pupils improve in their studies from year to year was shown in results of several different tests conducted last week throughout the school system.

The tests were similar to those given students of th esame age from one to five years ago and in every instance the results were shown to be higher.

Geography Grades Higher

In a geography test consisting of 20 completion exercises given fourth grade students, city averages increased from 15.7 in 1923 to 24.8 in 1928. Pupils were allowed 12 minutes for the test.

A 10-minute geography test consisting of 45 completion exercises, covering the work studied this year, was given in the fifth grades. Results show that the city average to have risen from 13.6 for the same test in 1923 to 10.1 this year.

Forty completion exercises given sixth grade pupils in a 12-minute geography test showed to city average for 1928 to be 24.2 as compared to the 19.8 average for the same test in 1923.

Seventh Grade Tests

Work of seventh grade pupils rose from a city average of 29.9 in 1923 to 38.1 in 1928 for the same test of 37 completion exercises in 15 minutes given both this year and five years ago.

A test consisting of five problems selected from work covered this year was give in the eighth grade and resulted in 156 perfect papers for the city, Leta Brookshire's room at Vernon Heights Junior high school having the largest number of perfect papers, 21. The average this year was 4.1 as compared with 3.7 in the same test given in 1927.

The city average of 3.3 in 1924 rose to 4.5 when the same algebra test of six problems was given ninth year pupils last week that had been given pupils of the same age in November, 1924. There were 52 perfect papers, Caroline Struthers Central Junior high school room having the largest number, 15.

SENIORS PUSH SALE OF SEASON TICKETS

Six Entertainments Remain in School Lecture Course

Season tickets for the lecture course entertainment being presented here this winter by seniors of Harding high school will still be found an economical purchase, since in addition to the five of the six remaining numbers to be given, another program, complimentary to ticket holders, has been added. In this way those purchasing season tickets now will still have the opportunity of seeing six performances for the season ticket price of $2.00.

With renewed interest seniors have again undertaken the sale of season tickets. The success of the sale before the opening number merited the complimentary program.

Second number of the course, a play, "Lightnin'," will be presented at Star auditorium Tuesday night, Dec. 18.

"Lightning'," which broke all records with a run of 1,201 performances in New York City, will be presented here by the Herbert Sprague players, with Herbert Sprague in the lead and Floy Mahan Sprague, who is well and favorably known in feminine roles, playing opposite him. The main charm of the play is found in unique leading character, who in this the simplicity and loveableness of the instance will be portrayed by Mr. Sprague.

The new Ford has a very simple and effective lubrication system

THE lubrication system for the engine of the new Ford is as simple in principle as water running down-hill.

A gear pump in the bottom of the oil pan raises the oil to the valve chamber reservoir. From here it flows on to the main crankshaft bearings and the front camshaft bearing. Overflow oil drops into the oil pan tray and runs into troughs through which the connecting rods pass.

As the ends of these rods strike the oil they scoop up a supply for the connecting rod bearing. At the same time they set up a fine spray that lubricates the pistons and other moving parts.

From the tray the oil runs into the bottom of the pan, and is again drawn up through a fine mesh screen and pumped to the valve chamber.

This system is so effective that the five-quart contents of the oil pan pass through the pump thrice in every mile when you are traveling at only 30 miles an hour. Yet there is only one movable part—the oil pump.

As a matter of fact, the lubrication system for the new Ford is so simple in design and so carefully made that it requires practically no service attention.

There is just one thing for you to do, but it is a very important thing . . . watch the oil! Change the oil every 500 miles and be sure the indicator rod never registers below low (L).

If the oil level is allowed to fall below low, the supply becomes insufficient to oil all parts as they should be oiled.

To insure best performance it is also advisable to have the chassis of your car lubricated every 500 miles. This has been made easy through the use of the high pressure grease gun system.

Proper oiling and greasing mean so much to the life of your car that they should not be neglected or carelessly done.

See your Ford dealer regularly. He is especially well-fitted to lubricate the new Model A car and he will do a good, thorough job at a fair price.

Motorists having business at the Union station will find no fault with the action of the Hocking Valley people in barring the use of its property for a parking place for cars. The practice has been an imposition on the local public having real occasion to motor to the station, and it is good to know that it is to be broken.

When the husband of a conscientious housewife of Harmony, Illinois, came home with a turkey he had won at a raffle, she called up the sheriff with the result that a clean-up was staged out there. We shudder to think of the crowded condition of the local bastile should every Marion man guilty of winning a turkey at a raffle be placed behind the bars.

One is just bound to experience a feeling of exhilaration to have the assurance of that college professor that the center of the universe is but 266,297,112,000,000,000 miles away from us. For time we have feared that it might be possible that we were on the outer edge of things.

Bishop Charles H. Brent, of the Episcopal Diocese of Western New York, is the latest American to attempt to please the British somewhat at the expense of the United States. Isn't it just possible that Americans might make a hit with the people of the Old world by refraining from even the slightest disparagement of America. The novelty of the thing, at least, should have some appeal.

Michael Strange, the second wife of John Barrymore, is so unusually cordial in wishing him happiness in his third matrimonial venture that it wouldn't be a bit strange should John's latest wife acquire the notion that her predecessor is glad to be rid of the ties which bound her to him.

The United States circuit court of appeals in Philadelphia has declared invalid the warrant issued by the United States senate for the arrest of Sheriff Thomas W. Cunningham, of Philadelphia, declaring him in contempt of that body. It seems that quite a number of the acts of senate committees are found to be illegal when submitted to close scrutiny by the courts. One of these days the upper house of congress may discover that it is not above the law, as it seems inclined to hold.

Grayson To Preach Health.

When Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson retires from the United States navy, December 20, to become president of the Gorgas Memorial Institute, he will have presented to him the opportunity he has long cherished—a desire to offer to the people of the nation-at-large the methods by which he succeeded in lengthening the life spans of three presidents.

But one reason actuated Admiral Grayson in accepting this new post—the belief that it will afford him opportunity to make a lifelong dream come true. Working with the Gorgas Memorial Institute, designed for the prevention and control of disease, Admiral Grayson hopes to bring more health and happiness not only to this generation, but to generations yet unborn.

Worry is the chief foe of the presidents of the United States, Admiral Grayson has found. And by applying to the public as a whole the methods he used in trying to keep worry at bay from Presidents Roosevelt, Taft and Wilson, Admiral Grayson believes he will offer the people something which they have needed for a long time.

It has long been known to the public that Admiral Grayson is one of the most expert of medical men, and with his vast knowledge now available to the public, through the medium of his new post, one may confidently expect a program which, if adhered to by the millions of "patients" throughout the country, will redound to the public good and institute a public health program of immense benefit.

For a Safety Responsibility Law.

Following the submittal of a very comprehensive report by a committee of seventeen representing the motorists of the entire country, the American Automobile association, which has made an intensive investigation of the subject covering a period of several years, has sponsored certain basic principles which it hopes to see embodied in a safety responsibility law capable of nation-wide adaptation.

The report of the committee is the reflection of an exhaustive investigation made by it in all sections of the country as well as an analysis of all the proposed and attempted solutions of the problem presented by the reckless driver and the relation of that problem to the question of financial responsibility for such damages as he incurs. It is worth noting that compulsory automobile liability insurance, recommended in so many quarters, is definitely discarded by the association.

The recommendations of the committee, appended to its report and approved by the executive committee of the American Automobile association, outline the suggested principles as follows:

"It is believed, first and foremost, that the problem should be approached from the standpoint of safety—a fact which was overlooked in the case of the Massachusetts compulsory automobile insurance law and in other radical measures proposed from time to time.

"The primary aim should be to put the reckless driver off the highways. The most effective way of accomplishing this is through the universal adoption of a drivers' license law.

"An effective measure should make stringent provision for the suppression of driving permits of all persons found guilty of serious violations of motor vehicle laws, such as driving while intoxicated and leaving the scene of an automobile accident involving injury or damage.

"The case of persons against whom a judgment has been rendered by a court of competent jurisdiction, but who has failed to liquidate that judgment, calls for special consideration. Their driving permits should be suspended until such time as they have fully liquidated the judgment and established a future guaranty of financial responsibility.

"One of the current evils confronting motordom lies in the fact that a driver who is put off the roads in one state can move to another state, secure a license and pursue his reckless course. This situation is capable of complete control. Such control can be brought about by the insertion in the drivers' license law of every state of a proviso which will forbid the issuance of a driving permit to any person whose permit is at that time suspended in any other state for failure to respond to damages or because of other serious violations of motor vehicle laws. This would render the suspension of penalty nationally reciprocal.

"It will be noted that the suggestions are directed at the driver who is proved to be reckless and irresponsible. They are based on ascertained facts which show that accidents are caused by a minority of reckless persons and which show that only a small minority of irresponsible drivers fail to meet judgments."

In announcing these basic principles which the American Automobile association has decided to advocate to meet the problem which the motorists of the land have been forced to face by the reckless driver, President Thomas P. Henry, of the association, made a statement in which he said that, with forty-two legislatures scheduled to meet within the next few months and with the failure of the Massachusetts compulsory liability insurance law now generally conceded, "the time is most opportune to put forward the basis for a sane measure to curb the reckless driver and to promote payment of legally-seemed judgments."

Experience alone will tell definitely how far a law based on the principles sponsored by the American Automobile association will go in accomplishing the result sought, but such a law, generally adopted, certainly would go a long way. In the first place, it would cause all drivers of motor cars to take out licenses; it would eliminate the driving of cars by mere children; it would aid in preventing, if it did not entirely stop, persistent reckless driving, and it would certainly go far in assuring compensation for damages sustained by motorists or pedestrians as the result of reckless driving on the part of those who are execution proof.

It would be indeed hard to look at a law embodying the principles set out, no matter what the viewpoint, and not find merit in it.

If the Communists who staged that demonstration in front of the royal palace in Bucharest expected to find the Roumanian peasant government easy, they probably now realize that they have another surmise coming.

The American Federation of Labor favors the tightening of the barriers against immigration. Possibly there may be selfishness in its position, but no more than in the position of those who are seeking to let down the bars to cheap labor, regardless of what result such a course may have on the welfare of the country as a whole.

"Silence is golden," says David Lloyd George, "but there are times when silence is brazen." Cheer up, David. We have yet to hear that you have ever been tied up to any extent with either variety.

It has been established that the Vestris was in a dangerous condition twenty-four hours after leaving New York; that the aid of the White Star liner, Cedric, was declined forty minutes after the belated S O S call was sent out and that she went down thirty-seven miles from the position reported by her. The days pass only to make less understandable the course followed which led to the sacrificing of over a hundred human lives.

CAUSE FOR THANKSGIVING.

Simple Living.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Lots of letters come to my office asking questions about high blood pressure. These communications give me the idea that most persons regard high blood pressure as a disease. I have before me a letter from a reader in New York City who wants to know about high blood pressure because he says he must work for his existence and wants to know what he can do to relieve the trouble and yet continue his activities.

Sometimes I wish there were no instruments of precision. Certainly they should not be used by laymen. The clinical thermometer, the laboratory blood test, and the use of the instrument for measuring blood pressure, should not be employed except by persons who can understand the significance of the results obtained in using them.

If you do not feel well after a hard day's work and find your temperature is a couple of degrees above "normal," you are frightened half to death and regard yourself as on the verge of a serious illness. As a matter of fact this much temperature may be the result of fatigue. In my opinion, a great many persons suffer from what may be called "fatigue temperature." A good night's rest will restore them to normal condition.

I have much the same feeling about blood pressure. There are passing effects of emotion, hard work, or worry that may change the pressure of the blood.

It must be borne in mind, too, that individual peculiarities, age and occupation have much to do with blood pressure. In short, simply to take the pressure and find it above or below "normal" means nothing in itself. It is necessary to know a lot about the individual, about the kidney action, about the state of the digestion, and particularly whether the teeth and tonsils are in proper condition.

Let us assume, however, that there is high blood pressure and that the blood tension is considerably higher than it is desirable to have it. What should be done about it?

The first thing is to find out some of the things I have mentioned. Almost all persons past middle age who have high blood pressure are likely to have bad teeth. Pussy gums, or abscessed roots, may be the source from which poisons are being taken into the system. There can not be perfect health so long as such poisons are at work in the body. They are sure to undermine the health and vigor. They produce changes which may have high blood pressure as a symptom.

There is another factor, not well understood as yet, which no doubt is of vast importance in the production of changes in the blood pressure. I refer to the ductless glands, so called. The thyroid gland is the most familiar example of this group of glands, but there are others besides.

When there is failure of the proper function of the ductless glands, high blood pressure may result. Experimentation is going on now to find a means of controlling the action of the ductless glands. All these matters are of importance when we consider this particular subject.

The important thing for my friend who has written to me is to live a simple life, controlling his emotions, avoiding overwork, and eating proper food. Then he may hope to go about his affairs without any danger. In other words, make it a point to live right and have the health good as possible, and don't worry simply because the blood pressure is high.—Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

The World of Invention.

Editorial Opinion.

MORE TROUBLE IN THE BALKANS.

Sofia despatches report that Great Britain and France have been forced to intervene again to check trouble in the Balkans, caused by those persistent trouble-makers, the Macedonian nationalist secret organizations. The Macedonian committee aspires to be a hidden state within three other states—Bulgaria, Greece and Jugoslavia. Its members are chiefly Bulgars of race, but have in mind the creation of an independent Macedonia, pieced together out of territory belonging to the three nations mentioned. Naturally, anything that embroils these three powers is welcome to the Macedonian agitators.

A couple of years ago they tried to start a war between Bulgaria and Greece by staging a border raid into Greece. They are also in the habit of raiding southern Serbia for the purpose of exciting Serbian reprisals. They conduct operations which challenge the sovereignty of the three states concerned constantly and embitter Balkan diplomacy. Irritation and insurrection are the chief features of their program, which seems to be directed from headquarters in Vienna.

Bulgaria is handicapped in dealing with the Macedonian belligerents by the fact that Macedonian influences are powerful in the Bulgarian army and in Bulgarian politics. The present ministry hesitates to stamp out the revolutionary organization. Its procrastinations have laid it open to clashes with Greece and Jugoslavia, since the Macedonian raiders operate primarily from Bulgarian soil. The committee claims political independence, relying on the alleged right of racial determination, so much over-exploited at the Paris peace conference. But to make its claims good, it must defy the Paris treaties and conduct what amounts to a practical war against three existing nations.

The present difficulties may be pitched up by negotiation. But the status quo in the Balkans will continue to be threatened so long as the Macedonian secret organizations are able to resist dissolution, to finance themselves and to find ardent supporters in the Macedonian mountain strongholds for their revolutionary propaganda.—New York Herald Tribune.

THE FIRST SKIRMISH.

Friends of naval preparedness and of the pending cruiser bill rejoice that the first skirmish to secure the passage of that measure has been fought and won. It takes the form of an agreement between Senator Borah, chairman of the foreign relations committee, and Senator Hale, chairman of the naval affairs committee, whereby the cruiser bill is to have its routine right of way on the senate calendar.

The question of possible precedence arose over the fact that since the cruiser bill came over from the house and became unfinished business of the senate the Kellogg anti-war pact has been negotiated. The latter will presently be brought before the senate for ratification. There was a peril that certain industrious friends of the anti-war treaty would seek to displace the cruiser legislation and give priority to the multilateral war-renunciation pact. That accomplished, their program was to depict the cruiser bill as "superfluous" and "inconsistent." Some foes of national defense went the length of saying it would also be "hypocritical." Their purpose was—and is—to kill the bill.

Senator Borah has apparently nipped this pacificistic scheme in the bud. "My idea," he announces, "is to go ahead with the Kellogg treaty, according to the regular procedure, the same as if no naval bill was up for consideration." What Senator Borah means is that the anti-war pact will undergo statutory consideration in the foreign relations committee, be reported out and then be acted upon by the senate. Just when that will be nobody knows.

The cruiser bill, on the other hand, is already reported out by the senate naval affairs committee. By the calendar hitherto adopted it will come before the senate as soon as the Boulder dam bill is disposed of. It is well to be assured that no artificial snags are to be placed in the cruiser bill's path. There will probably be shortsighted opposition enough to that moderate, legitimate and necessary piece of naval expansion without strewing parliamentary mines across its normal course.—Washington Star.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Nov. 28—Recently I returned from California with the quaint tale of a thirty-eight-room hilltop house built for a childless married couple out yonder. At the few gatherings where I cleared my throat impressively to tell about it the excitement was quite negligible.

It appears that around the corner and up Fifth avenue a few blocks from where I board there is a forty-one room duplex apartment occupied by a gentleman who lives alone save for his servants. He has, incidentally, eighteen rooms for the help, leaving a paltry twenty-three for his own use.

The bare apartment cost $375,000, but with furnishings stands the owner—a Mr. Markle from Wilkes-Barre, with coal mines—a million. It has everything including a block-long Roman pool and private switchboard with some twenty extensions and a day and night operator.

Mr. Markle, it seems, shrinks from publicity. He shoos snooping reporters and photographers away. He wants to live simply and quietly, wandering about among his art treasures. Those who know say the mere upkeep of such a castle-like apartment costs $75,000 a year.

In a building to be erected on Park avenue in the Seventies a middle-aged bachelor is to see Mr. Markle and raise him twelve rooms. He will have fifty-three rooms in all—sixteen of which are to be designed to meet especial needs of his friends when they are house guests.

A doctor on upper Fifth avenue has acquired a thirty-nine room apartment. And thus the 20-room apartment becomes no longer a novelty among the rich. It all means the passing of those palatial mansions, such as that of the late Senator Clark, in New York. Realty values are too tremendous for even millionaires to support a castle.

So the nearest Manhattan can come to a glorified private dwelling is the penthouse on the roof of high-flung buildings. These permit a little terraced ground about them, formal gardens for informal parties, a few open verandas, and there is one with an arbored walk at the end of which is a beautiful vista of the city.

A few abandoned breweries in New York have been turned into profitable enterprises. They are used for raising quick-growing mushrooms and provide a market turnover within a few days. Mushrooms bring around a dollar a pound in large cities and several growers are realizing as high as $100 a day.

A popular novelist tells of being annoyed several times a week by a show-off who gives the impression of being on easy and familiar terms with him. He addresses the novelist over the phone by nickname from a room in which the hum of conversation indicates is well filled. No matter how much he may splutter his protests, the voice at the other end creates an impression of fast friendship. Just another neat little brand of New York four-flushing.

Along the Rialto they no longer jeer that a fellow producer is slipping if he sponsors a flop. A few years ago when a lavish production "laid an egg" the merry hoot echoed through the canyon that a certain glorified musical revue producer was through—it was Mr. Ziegfeld, if you'll let go of my throat—and it reached his ears on the eve of a long journey. Ziggy is vainer than a dozen peacocks. He was indeed getting ready to retire and travel. Instead, he unpacked his trunks and goaled 'em with the most spectacular burst of prodigacy Broadway has ever known. He produced three musical shows at a total well over $1,000,000 and had a new theater built for him to boot. He hasn't heard a teeny-weeny peep since.

Ziegfeld's announcement of opening the old Midnight Frolic roof atop the New Amsterdam theater is pleasing the old-timers who used to crick a shriveled neck to see the bare-legged coryphees disport on a glass runway overhead. Ziegfeld's plan provides food and dancing at intermission. Also the little wooden hammers with which after midnight New York of fifteen years ago beat upon table tops so insanely, joyously and perhaps a little drunkenly.

Two Orders of Planets.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

The sun has a double planetary family, a group of small ones including the earth, near him, and a group of large ones, captained by Jupiter, at a much greater distance.

On December 21 Mars will be in opposition to the sun as seen from the earth. The two planets will be at that time over 54,560,000 miles asunder.

Mars, Earth, Venus and Mercury constitute the planets of the small group which the sun keeps close under his wings. The earth is the chief member of this group, although Venus is nearly her twin in size, while Mars, smaller than either the earth or Venus, is the most distant of the group, with Mercury the smallest.

Two of the group of great planets—Jupiter and Saturn—are comparatively close. The other two—Uranus and Neptune—are far away. Uranus can not be seen satisfactorily without a telescope, and Neptune not at all. On the other hand, both Jupiter and Saturn are very conspicuous, brighter even than the brightest fixed stars, although Saturn is now too close to the sun to be seen from the earth. Saturn passes behind the sun on December 13, but Jupiter glows brightly in the evening sky, where Venus is also present in still greater brilliance.

The cause of the separation of the planets into two groups is only conjectural. It has arisen mechanically from the operation of the forces which created both the sun and the planets. It can not be accidental, but this is no place to discuss the circumstances that probably brought it about. It is interesting to note that not only is the earth a member of this group but that no scientific suggestion of the habitability of any other planet than the earth has ever been made with reference to the other group—that of the large distant planets.

It is not, however, the great size and the great distance of these planets that have prevented their inclusion, so much as their own physical condition.

Between the orbits of Mars and Jupiter circulate the famous "asteroids," more than a thousand of them, and these, too, have an undeciphered story to tell of the origin and growth of the solar system. The asteroids are small bodies, which some have thought may be the fragments of an exploded planet, or the scattered material from which a planet might have been formed but for untoward circumstances. Only three or four have diameters of 100 to 500 miles, the vast majority being probably from five to twenty miles in diameter. Some seem irregular in shape, as if they were actual fragments of a large body.—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Life has changed more in the past thirty years than in 3,000 years preceding. In many ways there is more difference between the manner of life in 1900 and the life today than between the life of 900 A. D. and 1900. We have developed ten mechanical horse power for every member of our population. To do America's work with human hands would require sixty times as many adults as are now living on the face of the earth. There is a single electrical plant in this country sending out streams of electrons capable of performing work equivalent to the combined efforts of 10,000,000 men.

There is much speculation as to what men are doing and going to do with all this astonishing power. The best way to get at that question is to consider what you are doing with your particular power. Power is the greatest responsibility that man can carry.

There seems to be a great deal of misinformation about churches and the progress of churches in the past few years. It is too frequently said or referred that the church is not doing well. The fact is that since 1891 the population of the country has increased eighty per cent, while church membership in the same time has increased 130 per cent. In 1850 one person in six belonged to a church; now it is one in three.

And the church of late years has expanded in the life of communities as a significant spiritual institution. The growth and perfection of hospitals, the Y. M. C. A., and all institutions for human betterment, are but practical expressions of the church. They are carrying out programs and policies which have been preached from the pulpit by the more forward looking ministers for the past generation. The church does not fail. The church goes on.

There is a line which goes like this: "The soul can split the skies in two and let the face of God shine through." There is something invincible in the human-being if he will but recognize it. There is something in him than can rise above disappointment and disaster and defeat. In the throne room of man is the soul, and life's direction comes from there. We read in Edna Milay's poem: "Come now, be content, for I shall have grown just a little taller than when I went."

And so life's most difficult and most unhappy experiences, taken standing up, face ahead, can leave us a little wiser, a little bigger—a little taller than when we went.

Twenty Years Ago.

It was Saturday.

Between 250 and 300 men were entombed in a coal mine at Marianna, Pennsylvania.

A test of the Scioto river water west of the city, contrary to the claims of the state board of health, showed it to be practically free from bacteria.

The local polo team defeated Ashland, six to four.

"A Message to Mars" was the offering at the Grand.

DIES OF BURNS

Woman Injured When She Pours Kerosene on Coals

Xenia, Nov. 28—Mrs. Artis Potts, 24, of Octa, Fayette county, is dead here today of burns received in an explosion that resulted when she poured kerosene on smoldering coals in the cook stove of her home yesterday.

Burning oil was spattered over the room in the explosion and the woman was enveloped in flames. Neighbors wrapped her in blankets and took her to Xenia where she died.

The house and contents were destroyed but her three young children escaped injury.

Plenty of men can be found who envy a man who has time to attend the matinee.

New Broadway Melodrama is Like an Earthquake

Uses Flashlights, Switches Lights On and Off and Utilizes Noise-Makers

BY DAVID P. SENTNER

Copyright by I. N. S., 1928

NEW YORK, Nov. 28—An old-fashioned melodrama is supposed to have blood and thunder in it but here is one with an earthquake—"The Squealer."

Take a photographer's flashlight. Switch on and off the stage lights, rattle a dozen potatoes in an old tin pan or shimmy a fistful of buckshot in a cocktail shaker—and you have an earthquake if you are so inclined.

This particular earthquake came like dessert at the end of a menu of murder a la murder. The setting for the abbatoir is in San Francisco Chinatown, in the year 1900 of gangland.

Charlie Wong is the Oriental villain and purrs throughout as treacherously as a flivver fueled on vaseline. Charlie is just about the meanest chink who ever peddled dope with a nice, clean-thing white gangster lad.

Hiss away, sister, when I tell you Charlie in the end gets a bullet in his chow mein, a place which will do him no good.

Dora Deane (Ruth Shepley) and "Slippery Jimmy" (Robert Bentley) are in love, although married. Although "Slippery" has been peddling dope at bootlegger prices for some time he doesn't seem to be able to lay up a penny. He is only waiting to get the price of a frankfurter before goin' straight.

This talk of going straight, resembling a delayed forward pass, occupied much of the dialogue between curtains.

Then one night, Dora, who sang in a Chinese den but was decent just the same, told "Slippery Jimmy" that she was going to have—Well, you know what women sometimes have.

"My God, why didn't you tell me before," said "Slippery."

There's an answer to that by Dora but I have forgotten it. 'Twas the following which fascinated my memory.

"It's a fascinating game (old fashioned for Racket)," said "Slippery" in as tonight as a coed addressing an ice cream cone. "But I'm going to quit it and go straight."

But Wong, the greasy Chinese boss, wanted Dora and began thinking up ways that are strange and tricks which are in vain in order to frame "Slippery."

There was more than a faint incense of "Diamond Lil," Mae West's Bowery play, in "The Squealer." Jack Linder was partially responsible for both productions.

The theatrical pass of bringing in an irrelevant entertainment scene was repeated in "The Squealer." It was the most interesting part of the show.

A bevy of glow-thing high kickers slippered the slate out of the ceiling. A Chinese magician did some mysterious things with brass rings and swallowed fire without benefit of a chaser.

At the beginning of the program and at end of the production it was pointed out that this was an old-fashioned melodrama.

I accept the apology.

Owen Davis, who has written more plays than a swordfish has teeth, throws another melodrama into make-believe alley. He calls it "Tonight at Twelve." Perhaps he wrote it to give his son, Owen, Jr., a chance to make his way in the world.

Owen, Jr., is Tony Keith, the stage son of John Keith, who has a supposed mistress up his sleeve but won't unmask her for his wife's edification.

It is really the old shell game played with mistresses. Try and find them. "You are my husband's mistress," says Mrs. Keith, pointing her finger hopefully at each of three women. Mrs. Keith almost reaches asthma playing this hide-and-seek business.

The cause of all the heavy breathing arises from a note reading "Tonight at Twelve," left on John Keith's living room table.

Young Davis, or young Keith, had much to do with the complications and those in the orchestral camp chairs thought he was too cute for anything. If you know what I mean.

GRAF TO MAKE TWO ARCTIC FLIGHTS

Dr. Eckener To Go Along If Health Permits; Spring of 1930 Time

Berlin, Nov. 28—The transatlantic dirigible Graf Zeppelin will make two Arctic flights in the spring of 1930, the German air ministry announced today.

If his health permits, Dr. Hugo Eckener, who commanded the Graf on her round trip flight to Lakehurst, N. J., will be in charge on the polar flights. Eckener has joined the directors of the International Association for Arctic Research by Airships. Dr. Fridjhof Nansen, noted explorer, who will be in charge of the Arctic expeditions on the Graf, is president of the association.

"The necessity for long preparations caused the delay until 1930," Dr. Eckener told International News Service. "Whether I shall command the ship is still uncertain. It will depend upon my physical condition. First, anchor masts must be built at Nome, Alaska, and Leningrad, Soviet Russia. The American and Soviet governments have agreed to pay the costs. Plans for the airship in the meantime are indefinite."

Sufferings of 2 Years Ended By New Konjola

Neuritis Pains and Kidney Trouble Quickly Yield to Merits of Master Medicine

MRS. CORA E. GRESNER

"Konjola is a medicine deserving of all the praise given it. I will always be glad to recommend the remedy to anyone," said Mrs. Cora E. Gresner, 1315 Valley street, Dayton, Ohio.

"Between the neuritis and kidney trouble I was in constant misery. Pains affected all parts of my body—day and night those piercing, electric-like pains shot through me. Sleep was out of the question and frequent bladder action made resting impossible. It seemed that I was doomed to go through the rest of my life the victim of a rundown and disordered inner-system

"I felt that I would be making a grave mistake not to give Konjola a trial after I heard the remarkable things this medicine was accomplishing. That decision was the wisest I could have made. What a pleasure it is to make this statement I am free of kidney trouble and neuritis for the first time in two years and it was through the efforts of Konjola alone that I now enjoy glorious health. Is it necessary to say anything more in praise of this medicine?"

Konjola is different than any other known remedy in this section. It contains twenty-two juices extracted from natural plants which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to a more healthy action. The effect of this Konjola on the entire system brings amazing relief in cases of suffering that has been going on for years. At the same time, many weak and rundown systems have been restored to a new state of health thru this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experience with this new medical product, until now, Konjola is the most highly indorsed medicine that is known in this section.

Konjola is sold in Marion at Stump & Sams pharmacy and by all the best druggists throughout this section.—Adv.

WHAT A DOCTOR KNOWS ABOUT CONSTIPATION

There IS a way of overcoming the tendency to constipation. And here is how you can PROVE it.

The next time your bowels need any assistance, don't take the first laxative that comes to mind. Take one the druggist can assure you is made with CASCARA. Just as effective as using force, and it's good for the system. Indeed, it helps make good blood. For cascara is nothing but the bark of a tree. The Indians chew this bark, and live to an old age without a day's sickness.

What happens when you cascarize the bowels? They will usually function well for SEVERAL DAYS One more dose—no larger, and perhaps smaller than the first—and the bowels function of their own accord for a still longer time. Until you don't feel the need of any aid of any sort for weeks-on-end.

So, the only habit you get from cascara is that of natural and normal regularity. How different from things one must usually repeat on the morrow! Cascara is the ideal laxative; and the familiar little candy Cascaret is doubtless its ideal form. Children beg for these tasty tablets, and many men and women wouldn't think of taking ANYTHING else for the purpose. And EVERY druggist has them.

Her Color Went Black. She Was Frightened To Death

Mrs. Waite, New Brighton, writes: "That deadly indigestion and gastritis, caused by constipation made my color go black. I was frightened to death, and I feel your laxative saved my life. I take them every night now for precaution, and do not fear an attack of constipation poisoning any more" CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS All druggists—25c and 75c red pkgs.

FLUSH THE KIDNEYS BEFORE BREAKFAST

Drink Lots of Water, Also Take a Little Salts If Back Hurts

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Eating too much rich food creates acids, which excite the kidneys. They become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood. Then we get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys, or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin drinking a quart of water each day, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, and in a few days your kidneys may act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush and stimulate the kidneys; also to help neutralize the acids in the system, so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby often avoiding serious kidney complications.—Adv.

An Unusual Romance of Love and Sacrifice

BY HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER TWENTY SEVEN

...man in gray, and the ... the green hat made their ... out of the theater

... somewhere and ... asked

...looked down at her trim ... Can't, I'm not dressed

...go somewhere and eat?" ...her head laughing. No, ...anything for once in my ...take me home Ralph. I'm ...and I have an early morning

...a polite hint for me to ...in the doorstep and run, ...ully

...it isn't! You know I al... to see you but tonight—

"Tonight is an exception of course. Every night is an exception lately. Out of town two weeks, and as soon as you get back you're tired. First you're living in a hotel and I can talk to you in the lobby. Now you have an apartment, and I can come up and spend the evening next week or the week after next!"

"Honey, you know that isn't true. It isn't kind of you to talk that way ... I wish I were stronger—I wish I didn't get so terribly tired after my day at school—I'm a false alarm. I don't blame you—who wants to bother with a sickly thing like me?" She began to cry dabbing at her eyes with a scented handkerchief.

"You're strong enough to run around with the bobo-hemians!"

She sniffed pathetically. "If you call night classes running around with bobo-hemians! Oh I don't blame you. I've been nothing but a nuisance to you ever since I came here, borrowing money and working so hard that I haven't any time to see you hardly, and getting sick—and not doing so well in my work as I want to!" One hand was clutching the lapel of his coat, her head went down on his shoulder. He could feel her sobbing, feel her heart fluttering against his side. But he drove on silently steeling himself against her.

The car stopped in front of her apartment on California st. "You might as well stop crying and get out," he said gruffly. He made no move to help her. He kept his place at the wheel looking straight ahead.

"You're awfully mean," she pouted. "Ralph honey, you aren't going to go away mad." She was standing on the running board now, her lovely tearful face close to his. "You'll come tomorrow? When I'm rested—

"I think I'll take a little rest myself. I'm a little tired too Crystal." She got out and stood on the curb undecided what to do next.

He was so cold and hard. For the first time she was really frightened. She held on to his hand thinking desperately. If she could be sure that the coast was clear upstairs ... if she could bring Ralph upstairs and jolly him along a bit without running the risk of Avery Woodward dropping in ... She glanced back at her windows ... the lamp was lighted, the curtains drawn ... Had she left the light burning? Or had Avery come in? If only she could be sure ... damn Avery, always butting up at the wrong time.

"Don't keep your friends waiting," Ralph said with fine sarcasm following her furtive glance to the lighted window.

"There's nobody there," she cried quickly. Too quickly.

"Good night. See you soon," he mumbled and started the motor.

In a moment he'd be gone. Gone forever. And checks and dinners, and theater tickets gone with him ... Why couldn't she think of something to keep him? Damn Avery ... oh what a fool to get into a pinch like this ... "Wait," she cried desperately. "Wait—Ralph—wait!"

She made a frantic leap for the running board; he mustn't get away, he mustn't go like that.

Her heel caught at the door, but her foot slipped. With a little gasp of terror she felt herself falling. She shut her eyes, was conscious of a terrible pain in the back of her head. Then everything went black.

He carried her up the stairs, groped for the door. Thank God it was open and the lights lit in her crowded arty studio apartment.

Tenderly he laid her on the couch. Watched with mounting horror while one limp arm slid slowly from its resting place. If she were dead ...

Wave after wave of nausea swept over him. Beads of sweat gathered on his face, trickled stickily from his brow and twitching upper lip. Fascinated he stared at her lifeless hand, just grazing the floor, at her white lovely face, at her uncovered golden head from which the gay, green hat had fallen ... "I've killed her," he thought. "I've killed her. She'll never speak to me again, never move, never laugh—oh Crystal! Crystal!"

He ought to go for a doctor, he ought to phone for help, rouse the house, do something ... he wanted to run, to escape from that limp still thing that wouldn't look at him, that might be dead! Dead! Dead!

His muscles twitched. He was in a sweat, helpless as in a nightmare; he couldn't move. "Crystal! Speak to me," he cried hoarsely. He was on his knees flinging his arms about her.

And then he felt the warmth of her body, the faint stir of her breathing. Breathing! She wasn't dead.

Laughing and crying, mumbling broken words he put a trembling hand inside her coat, felt the strong, steady beat of her heart. He hadn't killed her! She wasn't going to die.

How long he knelt beside her, watching for the first flicker of her eyelids he never knew. But at last the long lashes lifted, she gazed at him with clear blue eyes in which there was no sign of either recognition or suffering.

"You fell off the running board—forgive me—forgive me!" he whispered.

She lay watching him stupidly. Minutes passed. She closed her eyes again for a moment and he cursed and sobbed under his breath.

Then she was sitting up patting his bowed head. "I'm all right, foolish! Look up, look at me! Ralph darling, didn't you ever see anybody knocked out before? You're a fine football champ you are. Stop shaking! Good gracious, I'm all right!"

He fought the nausea, managed to smile and to wipe his clammy brow.

"God, I thought I'd killed you," he said sheepishly getting to his feet.

"It's a wonder you didn't!" she whimpered laughing and rubbing the back of her head. "I can feel the bump. Good thing my head's hard. But I forgive you ... cause you're sorry!"

"Sorry!" he groaned. "I almost committed suicide to keep you company."

And then they were in each other's arms, his lips on hers. "You do love me Ralph, don't you? You aren't mad at me cause I'm afraid and I spend all your money on drawing paper and I'm a terrible flop and I won't give up—

"Love you ... Maybe I didn't find out how much I love you when I saw you lying there so still. Look at me. I'm a nervous wreck yet!"

She did look at him long and narrowly. "I didn't know you were so chicken-hearted, Ralph!"

"I am," he said ruefully. "Never could stand to see anything suffer. Makes me sick all over. Say, is there any more of that good gin I brought up when you moved in?"

"Yes—in the music cabinet in with the records. And I'll get the oranges. Start the radio, there's a sweetheart and we'll dance ... I wish we had some ice ... do you think a little pineapple juice would go good? Ralph darling come here and kiss mama once I said! Ralph stop—I'll spill the gin."

"Damn the gin—it's you I'm interested in!"

And while they kissed in the kitchen and the radio blared in the studio the front door opened.

Avery Woodward, a loaf of French bread and a dozen eggs in a paper sack in his arms, stood blinking in the doorway.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helps Her So Much

Pittsburgh, Pa.—"I was just completely run down. I had tired, heavy, sluggish feelings and I could not eat. I was losing in weight. I read so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what a good medicine it is that I started taking it. I have taken eight bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and about the same in tablet form. This is one medicine a woman should have in the house all the time. I am improving every day and I sure am able to eat. I am willing to answer any letters asking about the Vegetable Compound."—MRS. Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

TOMORROW is going to be Thanksgiving, I told Jubilee this morning, that I am thankful I am not a girl and that my aunt ain't twins and that he is not anyone else's dog and hasn't got any more fleas than he has. I bet he couldn't live without being a bigger dog. And no one wants to wash his dog this kind of weather and have him catch cold and maybe die. He didn't seem to understand what I was talking about and he acted like I didn't know what I was talking about myself but that is because he is a dog.

Thanksgiving is because the Pilgrim fathers and mothers used to be thankful if they got to church without being scalped by an Indian so they would be thankful all through church and then they would start for home and they wouldn't do anything to any Indians till one would shoot an arrow through their hat and then they would shoot a few Indians and turkeys. They were very proud of their hats. But I have seen pictures of them and I don't blame the Indians for shooting at them. A man wouldn't dast go through the vacant lot when we play ball wearing that kind of a hat.

My father hung the turkey up in the attic when my mother had got it all fixed and it is froze solid because it is winter time. We went sliding this morning and skating after school let out. The teacher told us all about Thanksgiving and what a hard time our forefathers had wrestling this country from the Indians. But if they hadn't wrested it away where would I be now?

My mother was making cake and cooking cranberries and making mincemeat so Younius and Maggie and Feeble came in to stay awhile when I come in with the milk. My mother gave all of us some mincement and gave me a cake bowl to scrape, which I gave to Younius, and she gave us some cranberries and a glass of milk, and Feeble hit my elbow when I went to drink my milk so that it splashed all over my face and was hanging from my eyebrows, and then I plastered her with a handful of stewed cranberries so that she looked like her face had been skinned, and my mother scolded all of us, and when Maggie said it wasn't her fault Feeble said: "It was too; you started the whole thing." So then we all sided in with Feeble and told Maggie she was to blame for all of it, and she almost believed she felt so bad. Then we went in the other room and she fell over my grandfather's game leg so then they all went home and supper was ready.

The Heart Story of a Woman's Lasting Affection

BY ADELE GARRISON.

Patriots Cause Some Disappointment

KATHERINE'S whimsical gibe brought me back with a start from what she laughingly had called my mind-reading. But indelibly impressed upon my mental tablets were several facial expressions fleeting but betraying which had revealed the dominant emotion in those of our guests whom I was watching.

Prince Georges dancing with Princess Olina was talking earnestly with her most of the time and I guessed that he was telling her of his interview with Charles Owen. But often his eyes strayed to Mary dancing with Mr. Owen while Princess Olina's surreptitious watch of Noel dancing with Carolyn never ceased. There was no jealousy in either gaze, I knew, as would have been the case had Mary and Noel been linking together. But there was the distinct uneasiness which each of this romantic royal pair manifested in any activity of Mary and Noel which did not include them.

I wondered if their eyes sharpened by jealousy noticed that Mary and Noel also were giving only perfunctory courteous attention to their partners and following each other with their eyes. But any speculations concerning the quartet of young people at such cross purposes ceased as abruptly as did my observation that Charles Owen's poised manner hid rage at Prince Georges and a sinister sort of satisfaction at the sight of Marion and Ronald so absorbed in each other. For the dance record came to an end and forgetting everything else they crowded around the fruit punch bowl.

Supper is ready, I told them. "Mrs. Bickett and I thought it was a pity for you to stop dancing to prepare it."

"How perfectly adorable!" Carolyn exclaimed, and her brother looked at me.

"Shall we choose our partners now?" he asked with a combination of schoolboy naivete and respectful courtesy which made him irresistibly appealing.

"No, we're going to leave that to blind chance," I told him repressing a smile at the disappointment in his eyes as I thought of the delightful surprise which would be his when we should use the device for arranging the supper partners. And when, after Katherine and I gravely had manipulated the strings we had so carefully arranged he found Mary holding the other end of the cord he had been given his face was no more radiant than hers. Both were still young and naive enough to show their emotions as candidly as children and their delight at the supper arrangement was patent to everyone.

There was no such pleasure reflected in the other faces, however. True, Carolyn was radiant, but I knew that she would have been just as pleased with Georges for a supper partner as with Noel. She was at the stage when an attractive young man was that and nothing more. As long as she was not shunted to her mother or her uncle, she had no quarrel with what chance brought her. But Georges, Olina, Noel and Mary could not conceal all traces of disappointment at the pairing. Only Charles Owen's face was inscrutable. I could not tell whether he was content to let Ronald absorb Marion's attention or whether he would have welcomed an opportunity to ingratiate himself still farther into her appreciation of him as 'Carolyn's wonderful uncle'—an expression I had heard her utter earlier in the evening.

There was but little dancing after supper and Princess Olina plainly restive insisted upon going home despite the pleadings of the other girls. Prince Georges seized the opportunity given by their importunity to tell me the result of his interview with Charles Owen.

"I think I've drawn his fangs," he told me with a touch of pardonable complacency.

Prince Georges Arms Madge with a Weapon Which Will Effectively Squelch Any Scheme of Charles Owens

I GAVE Prince Georges eager attention as he told me that he thought he had drawn the fangs of Charles Owen whom he had recognized as a man supposed to be a native of Treez, with a Greek name, but who was barred from both that country and Transvania for some reason evidently a secret not known to the young nephew of the King of Treez.

"I made him understand," the young prince went on grimly, "that I was going to—what do you say over here—keep cases on him every minute from now on. He knows that I have only to report his whereabouts to certain interested people—in Treez and Transvania—in order to make it extremely unpleasant for him. He also understands that if Queen Olga of Transvania finds out where her daughter is before the Princess Olina gets ready to notify her mother herself I shall make that report upon him at once, whether or not he himself is instrumental in giving the queen that information. It is to his interest now to keep her secret inviolable, and I am sure that he will do so."

There was a grimness in his tone and his expression boded no good to Samuel Brixton's half brother. The Princess Olina was safe from Charles Owen, but there was no assurance that Lillian would not be made a victim of the mysterious scheme which I was sure he and Samuel Brixton were concealing. I trampled underfoot an innate reluctance to confide anything of my affairs or Lillian's to a comparative stranger, and put a hesitant question.

"Is that knowledge of him anything which anyone else in fear of him could use?"

He looked at me searchingly and lowered his voice still farther.

"Yes, it is. No," as I started to speak, "Don't tell me anything. There isn't time. It is enough for me that you need the knowledge for yourself or a friend. As soon as I get the opportunity, I will tell you all about it, but until then I will give you a talisman which will enable you to deal with this—Mr. Owen——"

He stopped, then bent over my hand, kissing it as if taking his leave.

"Just say one word, looking at him significantly. It is 'Kenelles.'"

He repeated it twice, then as he straightened himself and released my hand, he murmured "Did you get it?"

I nodded, smiling.

"I am so happy to hear you say it," I said in my best hostess manner and then Princess Olina and Noel made their adieux to me. I noticed that Olina by a number of clever feminine artifices, kept Noel in such close attendance upon her that he had no chance for a word aside with Mary.

We all went out to the veranda to see them off, and when they had gone Mary looked at Ronald and Marion standing together near the end of the veranda, and then said demurely:

"It's too bad there isn't a moon, Marion."

"Why?" Marion turned a puzzled face toward her.

"Then you could show Ronald and Carolyn the moon on the ocean. It's such a short drive down that it wouldn't tire them too much even after this party."

3 Cup Cake Recipes

and Mrs. Singleton's tasting experience

IN making cup cakes be sure that your shortening is so pure and sweet that it will not detract from the delicate flavor of the cakes themselves. But, how to tell? Simply taste your shortening.

Mrs. Singleton did this, and wrote us:

"I have used Crisco for years, but never thought of tasting it before. So I closed my eyes and tasted first some of my butter, then Crisco.

"I was amazed at the delicious sweetness and freshness of Crisco. It seemed so much like sweet, unsalted butter."

There—that's the message one taste of Crisco gave Mrs. Singleton—and will give you!

Cup Cakes

½ cup Crisco
1 cup sugar
3 eggs
1¾ cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream Crisco and sugar. Add beaten eggs and mix well. Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt and add alternately with the milk to the first mixture. Add vanilla and beat thoroughly. Pour into greased muffin or cup cake pans and bake in quick oven (425 degrees F.) 15 to 20 minutes.

This recipe makes 15 to 20 cakes.

Filled Cup Cakes

Follow recipe for Cup Cakes. When cool split in halves crosswise and remove portion of the cake. Fill center with stiffly whipped cream, flavored and sweetened. Put halves together and ice all over with Creamy Chocolate Frosting.

Creamy Chocolate Frosting

1½ cups milk
4 squares unsweetened chocolate
1½ cups powdered sugar
Few grains salt
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cook milk with chocolate, cut in pieces, over a slow fire, stirring until thick and smooth. Add sugar and cook again until very thick, stirring constantly. Cool and add vanilla and salt.

Snicker Doodles

½ cup Crisco
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
½ cup seeded raisins
½ cup currants
½ cup nuts
1 teaspoon soda
1 tablespoon hot water
2½ cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon clove
¼ teaspoon mace
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
½ cup sour milk

Cream Crisco and sugar together. Add unbeaten egg yolks and mix well. Add raisins, currants and nuts, cut fine. Add soda, dissolved in hot water. Mix and sift flour, salt and spices and add alternately with the sour milk to the first mixture. Fold in one stiffly beaten egg white. (Save other white for frosting.) Pour into well-greased muffin pans and bake in a hot oven (375 degrees F.) 15 to 20 minutes.

This recipe makes 18 medium-sized cup cakes.

Frosting

1 egg white
2 tablespoons sweet cream
Confectioners' sugar
¼ teaspoon mace

Add cream to unbeaten egg white and mix well. Add sugar, a little at a time, until frosting is the right consistency to spread. Add mace and mix well.

Having A Steady is Big Mistake Students Hear

Marion Star Bureau
Ohio State University

Columbus, Nov. 28—The trend of girls and boys going together "steady" is one of the biggest mistakes of modern youth, according to the Rev. Walter S James, Columbus preacher, in a statement to students at Ohio State university, recently

Boys should have more than one girl friend and girls should not be tied down to a single fellow,' Rev James maintained 'Several companions add to the individual's chivalry

One of the prime duties of a college man is to show by being a living example that the age of chivalry is not dead Many girl friends offer the finest way of developing chivalry in a man

Petting, as a pastime ought to be curbed according to the statement of the pastor

'College men and women 'pet' because they believe it is the right thing to do in order to be popular and stand high in the social circle It is wrong and should be eliminated'

D. & M. Awarded $386 Jury In 8-Year-Old hite Oaks Crossing Case

nsation Verdict, Regarded as Victory for County, May Mark Close of Lengthy Litigation; C., D. & M. Undecided on Possible Appeal

...nbus, Delaware & Marion ... was awarded damages ... a jury in common pleas ...day as compensation for ...construction of a crossing over the company's tracks at the southern end of White Oaks rd. The jury was called yesterday morning.

The verdict is considered a victory for the county, although it is more than double the amount county officials held to be a just settlement with the C., D. & M. for placing the crossing over its tracks. The county held that $100 for construction of the crossing and $6 for the land taken by the county was sufficient compensation.

A. F. Van Doinse, president of the C., D. & M., through his attorneys, W. P. Moloney, asked the jury for damages totalling $8681.81. Of this $701.81 was for construction of a concrete crossing, $6 for land and $286 for damages to the company's property.

County officials held that a concrete crossing was not necessary and that one constructed of planks would serve the purpose well and would be less expensive.

The jury viewed the proposed crossing site yesterday morning. Attorneys for the county and the interested land holders, the plaintiffs in the case, and for the C., D. & M. presented their cases in the afternoon. The county was represented by Prosecuting Attorney Frank Wiedemann. Fred E. Guthery represented the interested land owners. The jury reported shortly after 5 o'clock.

Plans Undecided

Whether the court action yesterday will bring to an end the battle between the county and the electric company is not known. The C., D. & M. can carry this verdict to the court of appeals and the supreme court as it has done in other decisions involving the White Oaks rd. crossing. Mr. Moloney was unable to say yesterday whether the C., D. & M. would accept the verdict of the jury.

The case started in 1920 when land owners asked for an extension of White Oaks rd. to give them an opening on Prospect pk. County and city officials also favor the project, as it will give another outlet to the south from the city.

The case has been fought by two prosecuting attorneys and may go to a third. Fred W. Warner first took the case into court for the county. It was still pending when Frank Wiedemann took office four years later. Wiedemann's term will expire at the end of December. The case has been in the common pleas court, the district court of appeals, and the state supreme court.

About three weeks ago, according to reports here, the youths' mother committed suicide in Lawrence, Mass., where she was visiting friends. The body was brought here for burial. She was the mother of 10 children.

Police are investigating last night's shooting as they declare they are not satisfied with some of the details surrounding the finding of the body.

Because it is so quick, so safe and so sure in ending digestive troubles, millions rely on "Pape's Diapepsin." "Pape's Diapepsin" is unequalled as an indigestion remedy and dietary corrective, yet it costs only 60 cents a package at all druggists.

If your stomach ever torments you get "Pape's Diapepsin" at once and recapture the pleasure of care-free, painless digestion. You may have felt that nothing can help your particular difficulty, but so have others to whom this remedy proved a pleasant surprise. This experiment with diapepsin may do as much for you.

FIREMEN RESPOND TO FOUR ALARMS

Explosion in Old Automobile Starts Blaze Causing $500 Damage

After almost an entire week during which no fires were reported, local fire companies made four runs yesterday afternoon and this morning. Damage totalling $500 resulted in one of the four blazes.

This loss was sustained by W. Starling when gasoline in an old Ford sedan is believed to have exploded from an unknown cause. The barn at the rear of 133 West Fairground st., in which the car was stored, was completely destroyed. Flames spread to the roof of a new two car garage next to the barn and damaged it seriously.

Wires Damaged

A chicken coop next to the barn was also destroyed and the flames burned electric light and telephone cables running through the alley on poles. A garage across the alley was also badly scorched.

A mechanic working in a nearby garage heard an explosion at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon and running out into the alley he found the barn in flames. He immediately turned in an alarm. Fire company No 3 responded. It is not known whether loss is covered by insurance.

Roof Fires

Two of the other fires resulted when sparks from chimneys ignited the roofs of the homes of Mrs. W. N. Quinn, 285 Mt. Vernon av., at 1:30 p. m. and W. S. O'Brien, 380 East George st., at 1:50 p. m. yesterday.

Damage in both fires amounted to approximately $5. Loss is covered by insurance. Fire company No. 1 answered the Mt. Vernon av. alarm and No. 3 the George st. alarm.

The fourth alarm was rung in at 2:50 a. m. today. The fire started when a furnace at the home of Dr. A. M. Crane, 581 Girard av., became overheated. No damage resulted. Fire company No. 1 answered the alarm.

INAUGURATION WILL BE DIGNIFIED EVENT

Governor-Elect Cooper Lays Plans for Brilliant Affair Jan. 14

Columbus, Nov. 28—Definite plans for the inaugural ceremonies marking the induction of Gov.-Elect Myers Y. Cooper into office here on Monday, Jan. 14, will be announced in a few days, it was indicated today.

Cooper informed newspaper men here some days ago of his desire for an inauguration that is "dignified and in keeping with the traditions" of the Buckeye state. He indicated his disapproval of an inaugural ball.

As a result of the quiet, unostentatious ceremonies which attended the induction of Gov. Vic Donahey into his three consecutive terms during the past six years, prediction is being made that the inauguration of Governor Cooper will be "the most brilliant" in the past decade.

A parade, reviewed by incoming state officials; band music at the statehouse, an inaugural address by Cooper, the firing of the gubernatorial salute, and a public reception for Cooper and other state officials are expected to feature the inaugural program.

COUNCIL APPROVES WATER FRANCHISE

End of Lengthy Negotiations at Mt. Gilead Now in Sight

Mt Gilead, Nov. 28—The Mt. Gilead city council has approved, with a few minor changes, a water franchise submitted to them by W. P. Maloney, of Marion, attorney for the water company, and City Solicitor C. H. Wood, who first satisfied themselves as to the legality of the instrument. The council held a special session Monday night and discussed the franchise thoroughly. There are but few changes recommended.

This practically ends a series of attempts lasting well over a year to reach a satisfactory agreement with the company on a franchise. Various problems have confronted both the company and the council and much time and work was necessary to bring about an agreement satisfactory to both. Probably one of the greatest problems was the question of free water. This is for the display fountain in the public square and for the drinking fountains.

The remaining questions can be easily settled in a meeting of the officials of the company with the council members, which will be arranged soon. It is hopel that the franchise may be completed and signed at this meeting.

KRESGE MARRIED IN EPISCOPAL CHURCH

"Thought Everything Was All Right," Minister Says in Explanation

Stroudsburg, Pa., Nov. 28—The Rev. Benjamin C. Dahmes, pastor of the Mountain Home Methodist Episcopal church today justified his action in performing the marriage ceremony for Sebastian S. Kresge, multimillionaire five and ten cent store king and Mrs. Clara K. Swaine, despite the stand of his denomination against the remarriage of divorced persons.

"I thought everything was all right or I would not have performed the ceremony," he explained.

Kresge, whose marriage to Mrs. Swaine was announced a month after it took place, had been twice divorced, the second time only 10 months ago on the grounds of infidelity, while his third bride had been divorced from John Swaine, a poultry farmer of Easton, Md., five years ago.

Church Opposes Remarriage

The Methodist Episcopal church went on record as strenuously opposing the remarriage of divorced persons, especially where the charge of infidelity figured in the divorces.

Kresge's newest wedding recalls here his romance with Miss Gladys Adele Fish, the former church worker of Natick, Mass. Just how this affair culminated is a matter of speculation.

Inquiry in New York today regarding the possibility that Kresge had made a settlement with Miss Fish proved fruitless. Neither could it be learned whether Miss Fish was contemplating legal action against Kresge.

Rumor Settlement

A report was circulated however, that Kresge had made a substantial settlement on his latest wife. This is given credence because Kresge announced a few years ago that if he married again he would compel his wife to waive dower rights.

Kresge's marriage to Mrs. Swaine is the latest of a long list of romances. His first wife, the former Anna Harvey, of Memphis and mother of his five children, obtained a divorce in 1924 charging cruelty. She received a settlement of $10,000,000 for herself and $5,000,000 for each of the five children.

A few months later Kresge married Doris Mercer, divorced wife of Percival Harden. They were divorced last May after a series of sensational court battles. Miss Fish was named co-respondent in Miss Mercer.

Evidenced was presented at the trial to show that Kresge had maintained Miss Fish in a New York "love-nest." Val O'Farrell, private detective employed by Mrs Doris Mercer Kresge, testified that he had raided the love-nest and found Miss Fish under a bed, beside which stood a bottle of whisky. A few days before the raid took place Kresge had donated $500,000 to the Anti Saloon League.

Decisions from the court of appeals, which consists of Judges Robert S. Shields, of Canton, Chas C. Lemert, of Zanesville, and Lewis B. Houck, of Mt. Vernon, are not expected for several weeks.

T. A. Campbell is clerk of the court of appeals and of the Morrow County common pleas court.

CAMPAIGN CLOSES

Wyandot County Canvass for Y. M. C. A. Budget Ends

Upper Sandusky, Nov. 28—Although a number of citizens who have always been firm supporters of the organization have not yet been called upon, the drive for the $5,600 budget campaign of the Wyandot County Y. In view of the fact that those who subscribed the larger amounts to clear the $12,000 debt are not included in the current expense canvass, the result of the work of the Young Men's club which sponsored the drive with the board of directors is a real achievement.

THANKSGIVING

With the dawn of Thanksgiving Day the glowing spark of gratefulness which is within the breast of everyone bursts into flame. This day we thus give thanks, for having so generously received. What a wonderful American thought—one selected day so devoted to giving thanks.

And as we partake of the day's festivities at the firesides of friends and families, what a great good for finer citizenship comes from the influence of it all. Indeed, we have much more to be thankful for in having Thanksgiving Day itself: the blessedness the day itself bestows.

MANY GOOD GAMES STILL REMAIN FOR LEADING ELEVENS

Wittenberg-Mt. Union Tops Thanksgiving Football Card in Ohio

By KARL R. McELROY
Sports Editor, The Star

WITH a most hectic football season almost a thing of the past, a few good grid contests remain to be played within the next three weeks, the majority of which are scheduled in the south and far west.

Ohio is practically through with football and interest is turning toward the development of basketball aggregations in the various schools and colleges of the state. The basketball season in Marion will formally swing into action on Dec. 4 and will gradually pick up until all professional, high school and amateur teams see action before Christmas.

Those caring to sit at their radios after a grand turkey dinner Thursday will have a wide variety of football games to select from.

Height: 6.3½. Weight: 240 Speed: Good. Captain in 1910. Coach: Yost. Resides: Chicago. Business: President Monroe, Benbrook Co.

First All-Mich. Eleven.

by John W. Heisman

FIRST of all, let me suggest to the reader he squint once at the height and weight items in the above statistics. When, in addition, I tell him that this great player was as fast as most elephants but infinitely less clumsy, and that he loved football better than small boys love green apple pie, you will have some understanding why the 1910 Minnesota team, one of the best ever turned out from that ancient stronghold of football went down to defeat in almost the very last minute of the gruelling struggle, with the Michigan Wolverines.

BENBROOK, with all his size, was shifty enough to come out of the line and run interference for his halfbacks around end. Sometimes they were too fast or him; but when he did get ahead of them you can imagine how well screened they were from enemy tacklers On four such occasions in this game Big "Ben" managed to get into the running and each of those times saw a splendid run reeled off by the backfield. But where the big fellow always shined was on opening up holes at left guard, and his hefty cooperation here had as much to do with Michigan scoring the winning touchdown as Wells' plunged right into the gaping hole that "Ben" made for him in that last desperate minute. Some say it had even more to do with the taking of the flood tide that led on to fortune.

AND stopping the brilliant General McGovern, and his Lumberjacks that day was a task calling for still other fighting on the part of the Wolverines; but of them all no man strove harder or to do better purpose that their leader. Benbrook lost 35 pounds in that historic battle, and he himself declared it to be the toughest mill in which he ever took part. Those who saw that scrap agree it was about the limit for evenly-matched ferocity, desperate fighting and dogged determination on the part of both teams not to lose.

IT should be interesting to note that in 1908, Benbrook's first year on the varsity he was only a fair performer, attracting no particular attention from anybody, although some observed that he was a willing young chap trying to get along But the very next year he had learned so much, had improved so rapidly that he made not only the All-American first team but was conceded by everybody to be the finest guard of the country. He had won this position over such sterling performers Goebel (Yale), who had been on the first team before, Tobin (Dartmouth) who had also been on the first team the year before, Withington and Fisher of Harvard and a host of others

THE next year he was first guard again, beating out Weir of the Army, that very fine guard, Brown of the Navy, Metzger of Vanderbilt and Butzer of Illinois.

Of all guards ever to come out of the West, Benbrook rates the highest, being hard pressed only by Trott of O S U and Chapman of Illinois He and Horr of Syracuse, at guards, and Henry (W. & J.) and Spears (Dartmouth) were probably the four largest men in our "Hall." Every one of them knew how to use his size and strength. It is singular, too how the "Biennies" flock to Michigan: Benbrook, Friedman and Oosterbaan; they all not only seem to make good there but they come out great.

New York, Nov. 28—Carlaris winner of the rich Coxforth handicap several seasons ago, and once the pride of the western turf, today had passed out of the hands of W. T. GREENWOOD WINS

Pearl Six Graders Take 16 to 10 Defeat From Old Foes

Boys down at Greenwood and Pearl schools take their basketball seriously. The six grades of the two schools are no exception and yesterday played the first of a series of games with Greenwood, winning over the Pearl cagers, 16 to 10.

Apparently the Greenwood five remembered the defeats handed them last year by Pearl. Members of the two teams were: Greenwood—Heaton and Dyson, forwards; Woods, center; Pritchard and Evans, guards Pearl—Danner and Ruzzor, forwards, Weller, center; Thibaut and Hoch, guards.

TWO GAMES TO END N.C.O. GRID SEASON

Mansfield Plays at Ashland, Bucyrus Meets Shelby Thursday

Although the title aspirations of most of the teams in the North Central league received a heavy jolt when Harding knocked off Shelby two weeks ago, two games that promise to be real thrillers are scheduled for Thursday on league gridirons.

These games have no bearing on the leadership of the league as that matter was settled in favor of the Red and Black. At Ashland Coach Stern's crew will take on Mansfield while Bucyrus journeys to Shelby. Mansfield and Bucyrus should come out on top.

Harding and Galion have finished their league season and tomorrow's frays will wind up the schedules of the other league teams.

GOLD DUST IN LEAD AFTER JUMP TO 132

Consolidated Gas Responds to Market Demand, Crossing 100 Mark

STOCKS ARE ACTIVE

Coppers Move Forward; Gains Scored in Wright, Curtiss Issues

BULLETIN

New York, Nov. 28—Setting up a 7,000,000-share pace in the most active-pre-holiday market in Wall Street history the stock market boomed along in a new powerful upward move today, with many of the speculative favorites jumping 10 to 15 points.

It was the old story of an avalanche of country-wide buying demand overflowing a m r ket in which stocks were not too plentiful, and in which the pools and professionals kept the closest rein on their own favorites. The bulls sat tightly in the saddle and cracked the whip over the fast-moving specialties.

BY W. S. COUSINS
U. N. S. Financial Editor

New York, Nov. 28—The "big rush" for the high-priced industrial and utility stocks started with the first tap of the gong on the big board today. Gold Dust led with a 10 point jump to 132; Consolidated Gas crossed 100 as forecasted and all good speculative stocks displayed their best form for the enthusiastic bulls.

Anaconda Copper again boomed to a new high at 115 1-2, more than twice the quotation of a few months ago. Kennecott, Cerro De Pasco, Chile and others showed higher and higher prices for copper in home and foreign markets.

The day before a holiday is generally considered an "off day" in the markets. No such signs appeared in the first hour today, though it is not always wise to forecast the whole day by the action of the market in the first hour.

Consolidated Gas in its new form jumped to 102, a gain of nearly 30 point's since the two-for-one split-up. Brooklyn Union Gas jumped 5 1-2 points to 176 and North American Co., in the same group, made a three point upward move.

In the airplane stocks Wright soared to 270, up 12 points and Curtiss jumped five points to 108 1-2.

Cotton

New York, Nov. 28—Cotton prices opened today at declines of 3-10 points, December sold at 20.52C, January 20.45C, March 20.45C, May 20.40C, July 20.22, and October 19.63.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF YESTERDAY'S GRAIN

Chicago, Nov. 28—Price fluctuations in the wheat market were cattle in a narrow range yesterday. The market was higher early on scattered buying, partly credited to Liverpool interests and later eased off with a sharp break in corn. There was not much change in news of the situation.

Corn opened higher on general buying and made further advances early. Local selling and liquidation through commission houses caused a sharp reaction later and prices finished lower. An easier tone in the spot market and belief that a natural reaction was due were responsible for some of the selling.

Wheat prices were ½@¾c lower at the close; corn was down ¼@½c, oats were ¼c lower, and rye was ⅞@1¼c lower. Winnipeg futures were unchanged to ⅛c lower at the finish and Liverpool closed ⅝@¾d lower. The latter market's weakness was charged to liquidation inspired by larger Argentine offerings.

Professional Trade

With nothing of interest in the news, wheat trade continued confined to activity of a professional nature. Locals sold fairly freely on the early bulge and there was some liquidation in the December delivery. Spreaders bought the December and sold the May at 7⅝c difference.

Dr. J. W. T. Duvel, head of the Grain Futures Administration, was on the floor yesterday. He is in Chicago, he said, in an effort to determine the factors which account for the present level of prices in the wheat market.

"It is our belief," Dr. Duvel stated, "that present wheat prices are too low. They should at least be up to where they were a year ago in view of the fact that present figures show that there is really but little difference in the supply of bread grains than a year ago, when prices were also low. The world is consuming wheat liberally, and it is our belief that just as much would be consumed at $1.10 per bushel as at $1.15; and everybody would be benefited.

Stocks Are Large

"Of course, stocks are large and there is a reluctance to take hold of the buying side in the face of them. Most of the trade continues to blame the Grain Futures Act for the lack of leadership on the buying side. It seems, however, to make little difference to those taking the other side of the market.

There was further indications yesterday that there has been a large quantity of wheat worked for export under cover, but the trade continued skeptical of acting on this assumption. At this time of the year there are always reports of this type and without better confirmation they will probably continue to receive slight attention.

Corn again showed indications of broadening interest. There was excellent buying power early, based mainly on the forecast for unsettled weather.

In the cash market wheat was steady; corn steady to 1c up early, but a little weaker later; oats were ½@1c up; rye was dull, and barley ruled steady.

MODEL TELLS OF HOTEL ROOM VISIT

Ruth Keyes Describes Gaity That Preceded Murder of Gambler

New York Nov 28—Patsy Ruth Keyes, pretty blond model from Chicago and an important figure in the Arnold Rothstein case today disclosed in a signed article in the New York Evening Journal what transpired in room 349 of the Park Central hotel shortly before Rothstein was mortally wounded Her own story, as told to a reporter tells of glasses tinkling a gambler doing parlor tricks and thrusting $50 bills on his girl friend, and of laughter and dancing

Mrs Keyes, who was in the room some time before the shooting occurred has given information to the authorities that has been kept secret She probably would have witnessed the actual shooting had not a previous engagement called her away She has identified a photograph of George McManus held in connection with the murder, as a picture of her host known to her only as 'Jack

Her story, in part follows:

'It was a desire to see new surroundings that led me to leave Chicago for a brief visit to New York And what did I do but walk right into a murder case

Recalls Face

"I have seen a photograph of George McManus and his face is that of 'Jack' who entertained me that night But if Jack or George McManus had any connection with this crime, then I marvel at his gaiety his utter lack of worry a short time before the deed was done

Mrs Keyes related how on the next day Sunday about 4 in the afternoon Jack called and she went back to room 349

'There was another man there a silent morose sort of a chap,' she continued We had a few drinks and then a third came in He was introduced as 'Chick' and he brought along three bottles of firewater He didn't stay long

No Answer to Rings

I left room 349 about 5 30 in the afternoon to keep my engagement Jack tried repeatedly to induce me to remain and I finally said I would call him if I returned to the hotel before midnight

'I got in about 11 30 and immediately rang room 349 There was no answer At 1 o'clock I called again Still no answer So I went to bed

'At four o'clock in the morning I was aroused by a knocking at my door There were three detectives there They said they wanted to question me but they refused to say what was wrong and I did not know what had happened until I bought a newspaper at breakfast'
